	There are CDC radiation courses already accredited to provide CME for physicians; Also accredited to provide continuing education credits by the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on Accreditations. And by the National Commission for Health Education Credentialing. I can get the details and I can invite CDC speakers to provide onsite training at MRC GEM. I can also arrange for MRC volunteers to visit CDC and receive this training there which will have CE credits for nurses and physicians.

	Contacts with other organizations will allow the greatest efficiency and success, because each group can help complete the other organizations' areas of weakness.
	Might expand available training, making use of others' resources, reducing duplicate efforts
	Red Cross has expertise in disaster management. Churches are a great resource which need to be pulled into meeting needs of the people. Faith in a higher power will be a major strength in a time of crisis; we need to be able to tap in to it and work together.
	since mmr is a gov function sould not mix with privot orgs
	In a real incident, MRC will likely need to interact with these organizations. Also, partnering with them will likely increase training and exercise opportunities for our MRC with little or no additional cost to us, hopefully.
	We have such a large, diverse population so the more interaction we have with others the better off we are.
	Because I like the disaster response organization that they have.
	Because things that happen outside Gwinnett County can directly effect us. We should be cordinated with them as well.
	better training opportunities, meet new people
	NDMS WILL BE PART OF MRC NEXT YEAR THIS TIME PLAN AHEAD
	Red Cross because of national training levels,other entities if we train them in proper procedures
	Red Cross responds first during natural disasters and provides broad spectrum of services in which we could assist if trained in their procedures.

You may know our members each receive a MRC GEM imprinted sling pack and water bottle after completing basic joining requirements (let us know if you have not received yours!). Also, members agreeing to assume managerial roles receive a polo shirt with an embroidered MRC GEM logo, to help identify their position, and a briefcase to carry job-related materials. When deployed in an emergency, or participating in an exercise, all members are also identified by a vest provided by the health department. Many volunteer organizations provide other items with the organization's logo to their members.

How important do you think it is for recruiting, retaining and recognizing our volunteer members, and for building team spirit, that the MRC GEM provide members with the following:
